THE ADJOURNED MEETING, 1906

On the evening of Dec. 1st, 1906, President C. H. and Mrs. Cooke opened their home on Keeaumoku street for the adjourned meeting, and the spacious drawing room and wide verandas were thronged with an enthusiastic band of Cousins.

Nine papers of reminiscence of special interest were read:

"Incidents in the history of Rev. Richard Armstrong," by his daughter, Mrs. E. A. Weaver.

"Scenes gathered from my mother's journal," by Mrs. L. B. Coan.

"Reverend Elias Bond," by his son, E. C. Bond, read by Mrs. W. F. Frear.

"Jottings from the lives of Rev. Titus Coan, and Mrs. Fidelia Coan," by Miss Hattie Coan, read by F. W. Damon.

"An incident in the life of Two Gulicks," written and read by Rev. O. H. Gulick.

"The voyage around Cape Horn by Rev. E. and Mrs. L. H. Johnson," written by Miss Frances Johnson and read by Mrs. Frear.

"Reminiscences of Rev. E. W. Clark and Mrs. Clark," written by their daughter, Mrs. Caroline Austin, with an incident of a shipwreck of the Clark and Andrews families, by Mrs. Gulick.

"Rev. Lorenzo Lyon," a translation of a poem, written in Hawaiian by Miss Elizabeth Lyon on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of Mr. Lyon's Mission work on Hawaii, was read by Mrs. Weaver.

"Recollections of Dr. Charles H. and Lucy C. Wetmore," by Miss Hattie Coan, was read by Judge Dole.

A very animated discussion took place over the proposed home for the Society, participated in by Governor Carter, W. O. Smith, F. W. Damon and A. B. Clark, and the committee for securing a home for the Society was increased from three to five by the addition of Governor Carter and J. P. Cooke.

The music was in the hands of Mrs. A. Francis Judd who led in the stirring strains of "Come Thou Almighty King" and "The Breaking Waves Dashed High." Mrs. Henry Bicknell favored us with a beautiful piano solo, and the meeting was closed with the time honored, "From Greenlands Icy Mountains."

THE ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the H. M. C. Society was held at the residence of Gov. G. R. Carter, on Saturday, April 27, at eight o'clock.

Vice-President, A. F. Judd presided. Mrs. Henry Bicknell led in "Blest be the Tie that Binds," and F. W. Damon offered prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted. The Treasurer's report was read and accepted. The election of officers resulted in retaining the present officers.

The minutes of the Board of Managers were read and three new by-laws were adopted; one for the creation of a fund for defraying current expenses, one for the appointment of a Publication committee, and one for the election of a Board of Trustees to administer the Society's property.

The report of the committee for repairing the old mission house was read by Governor Carter. A contractor had examined the building and found it in very bad condition. It was filled with borers and there was nothing to nail to and nothing to stand on. Other contractors were called in, but no one would undertake the repairs. It was suggested that a new frame be put up and old boards nailed to it, but this was objected to because it would destroy the sentiment. Besides, it would cost $3,000. Others suggested the injection of liquid cement into the timbers, as was done with the old Shakspeare house, but the cost was prohibitive. Mr. C. H. Cooke suggested that the lease be not accepted, but as he left for Japan, the remaining trustees decided to secure a contractor by the day to brace up the old house and place on it a sign or legend with date, etc., thus making it a place of public interest for some years to come. They would also fix up the coral annex, making it insect proof and nearly fire-proof, in which the Maile Wreaths, important papers, and smaller relics belonging to the Society might be stored under lock and key.

Governor Carter also read a paper called "A Missionary Trust," prepared for printing and sending out to all friends of the Society, stating the uses to which these old buildings, including the Chamberlain house, were to be devoted, and asking for financial aid. This had not yet been sent out owing to the frustration of their first plans. This report was received and accepted.

A collection was taken, amounting to $23.95. Part of the report of the Corresponding Secretary was read and some interesting personal recollections given.

Miss Clark played "Sounds from Venice." It might have been entitled "Memories of Hawaii," so in accord was it with the spirit of the evening. The plumpy palms waving at the door, the great jardiniere of roses on the table, the soft breezes floating through the windows over the fragrant violets, blended with the soft rippling melody like a dream of peace.

Mrs. Coan read extracts from the journal of her brother, Dr. Bingham, written in April, 1857, just fifty years ago, telling of his return on the first Morning Star, and revisiting the old home and meeting old friends. This was intensely interesting. It is recorded elsewhere.

Dr. W. D. Alexander displayed a small drawing of the mission premises previous to the building of the frame house. It was but lately received from the East. A. F. Cooke offered a bound copy of H. M. C. Reports for the archives. A. B. Clark said a one-cent coin had been found between the boards of the old house, black and coated with rust, but when polished bearing the date of 1820. It had probably dropped there while the house was building.

Some papers of reminiscence which were to have been read at this meeting were reserved and will be the attraction for the adjourned meeting. Mrs. Bicknell then played and all joined in Bishop Heber's hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," and the meeting adjourned.

THE ADJOURNED MEETING, 1907

The Adjourned Meeting, this year, was held on June 1st at the hospitable home of Mrs. A. Francis Judd, C. H. Cooke presiding. Dr. Bingham led in prayer and Mrs. Judd accompanied the Cousins in the hymn, "Blest be the Tie."

The first paper, by Dr. W. D. Alexander, consisted, in part, of extracts from the journal of Rev. Reuben Tinker, which recalled names and incidents of those early days when Punahou had but fifteen pupils.

A rare treat in music followed; a trio on violin, piano and cello, Cousin Violet Damon leading on the violin.

Mrs. C. M. Cooke read a paper called "Reminiscences of Mother's Life," written only a few months since by our dear Mother Rice, in her ninety-first year.

W. O. Smith read, "Life at Koloa and on Kauai," telling of boyhood memories of his father and mother's work on that island.

A fine tenor solo, all too short, followed; "The Temple Bells" sung by our cousin Philip Hall.

Because of business and the lateness of the hour three of the interesting papers were postponed, the President calling for the report of the Charter committee.

The Charter was read by A. F. Judd and accepted, also the following resolutions, which were voted upon separately and adopted.

Resolved: That Article I, Sec. 7, of the By-Laws be amended so that it shall read: All membership fees shall be placed in a fund to be known as "The Maintenance Fund." The fund shall be invested. Until the principal thereof become $1000, the interest from such fund shall be added thereto. After such amount shall have accumulated, the interest of the fund may be used in defraying the running expenses of the Society.

Resolved: That Article III, Sec. 7, of the By-Laws be amended so that it shall read: The President shall appoint a Publication Committee of three members, one of whom shall be retired from service each year, and the vacancy filled by the appointment of the same or of another member of the Society. The committee shall supervise all matters connected with the printing and distributing of the publications of the Society and shall assist, when called upon, the Secretary and Recorder, both of which officers shall be ex-officio members of the committee.

Resolved: That Article V of the By-Laws be amended in paragraph 3 thereof so that said paragraph shall read: 3. The reports of the Board of Managers, Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer shall then be read and acted upon.

Resolved: That Article III A of the By-Laws relating to the Board of Trustees be repealed.

Resolved: That the form of charter read before the meeting be adopted and approved, and that the officers of the Society therein enumerated be authorized and instructed to sign and present the same to the Territorial authorities for approval.

L. A. Dickey moved, and it was voted, that the Publication Committee be authorized to make verbal changes in these Articles and to re-number the By-Laws.

One thing which contributed to the pleasure and success of the evening was the presence of our welcome guests. One of these, seated in Great-grandmother Judd's rocking chair, was Mrs. Mills, of Mill's College, Cal., whom W. O. Smith introduced as his teacher at Punahou forty-three years ago, and who is seemingly as young now as then,

Mrs. Mills spoke of her first arrival here with Mr. Mills, of their warm welcome, of their stop with Warren Chamberlain and his dear wife, of Rev. Mr. Corwin, of W. D. Alexander and his bride, of the early days at Punahou when they made oxygen gas on the cook-stove, of the hard and varied duties and the economies, and of their success, during the third year of their stay, in making the school self-supporting and thus releasing the American Board from its support. She named many of the old students, and said that though she was eighty-one years old and had taught at Holyoke, in India, and in California, she never forgot her pupils at Punahou nor lost interest in them.

Cousin James Alexander of Oakland was called upon for remarks and told of the intense delight with which the absent "cousins" read the annual reports; of the importance of these islands, of their extent of territory—all the Society, Hervey, Astral, Pearl, Samoan, Pitcairn and Micronesian islands being less than one-half the extent of our islands—the charm of civilization as well as beauty of scenery, and the work of the territory for Christian development. Other islands were prospered, he said, in proportion to their seclusion. Hawaii had no seclusion and yet had prospered. She had overcome difficulties and was fitted to overcome greater ones in the future. The rainbow which overarched the islands as he came ashore, and the strife for promoting benevolence which he found in Honolulu, were to him a banner of hope and sign of future success.

The meeting adjourned after singing, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." There were seventy-three persons present.

THE OLD MISSION HOUSE, HONOLULU

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY'S REPORT

THE OLD MISSION HOUSE

The most interesting item of record for the year is the securing of the old Mission house as a home for the Society.

On Nov. 7, 1903, at the home of B. F. Dillingham, Dr. A. B. Clark, in his inaugural address as president of the Society, said: "The time has come when the Cousins should have a home in which to deposit all the records and mementos of the Society." On April 30, 1904, at C. R. Bishop Hall, Punahou, a committee was appointed to whom the matter was referred. This committee has been quietly working to that end, and now, through the generosity of C. M. Cooke, who has donated the twenty-years' lease, and through the beneficent gifts of others who are putting the property in repair, the apparently impossible stands out an established fact.

This old Mission house, the first building other than a grass hut, on these islands; the house that was prepared in New England, transported gratuitously by Messrs. Bryant and Sturgis a few months after the arrival of the missionaries in 1820; this building, so palatial in structure that the king would not allow of its erection for some time; this house is ours, to dedicate to the memory of the sainted fathers and mothers, and is now being restored, as far as possible, to its original condition.

The house was built during the summer of 1821, and was occupied about the first of October of that year. In "The Life of Lucy Thurston," Mrs. Thurston says: "The wooden structure has been reared and finished, having board floors, glass windows and two flights of stairs, the one leading up chamber and the other down cellar. The front door opened into the hall which extended through the house. At the right, on entering, was the large, common receiving room. On the left, my own private apartment. The two back rooms on either side of the hall were for the accommodation of two other families. The table was spread in the basement, and the cook-house was separated a little distance from the house. Our families had entered and made it our home." These families were the Binghams, Thurstons, Daniel Chamberlain's—with their six children—and the Loomises. Soon after, a small wing bedroom was built at the east end of the house and occupied by the Binghams.

In "Bingham's History," under date of Feb., 1822, we find, "The present number of native children in the family is twenty-two, fifteen boys and seven girls, which, with Hopu and Honolii and a hired laborer, makes our number forty-three. Mrs. Chamberlain takes the principal charge of providing our meals, which is no small task."

Mrs. Coan, from an old journal, finds that her mother, on returning from a visit to Kauai in the spring of 1822, "found the missionary sister in charge of the domestic department, hardly able to keep about, and in two or three days she gave up and took her bed. Another, overburdened with cares, took the post until, her husband having a violent turn of rheumatism, she was obliged to give her whole attention to him. Then mother went to the kitchen and for a while saw that fifty were fed with something regularly, three times a day. As to something to put upon the table, they sometimes had beef, pork, potatoes, butter, cheese, flour, sugar; and sometimes were destitute of all of them, and most of them at a time. But whatever might have been the fare, a bystander would have pronounced it generally a cheerful meal."

On April 16, 1822, a vessel arrived from Tahiti with an English missionary, Mr. Ellis, and Messrs. Tyreman and Bennet. Mrs. Bingham's journal says, "Our framed house, containing five rooms, with some open space above and below, with a store room and eating room on the cellar ground, was the habitation in which the four families dwelt, and in which they sought to make comfortable their welcome guests. One of the five rooms was considered necessary for common resort, for conversation, for the discussion of the language, to receive company often calling, to attend morning and evening prayers, etc. Four were left in which to place the beds of the eight parents and their little ones, and accommodate four single gentlemen." Then she tells how the Chamberlains gave up their room to Messrs. Ellis and Tyreman and curtained off one end of the attic with mats; how the other end was similarly fitted up for Mr. H. with his lodging and tools for repairing watches for the public; how the Binghamhs gladly gave up their room to Mr. Bennet and established themselves, with a baby and three native children, in a little alcove curtained off over the hall at the head of the stairs and lighted by the little six-paned dormer window in front. These three gentlemen remained till August of that year. Sometime during the year 1822 Daniel Chamberlain's moved to Waimea, Kauai, but "The Christian training of so large a family of children, in so rude and ruined a state of society, appeared to them hardly practicable; so, having diligently and usefully labored three years for the establishment of the mission," they left for the United States the following year. Miss M. A. Chamberlain, who attended a grandmothers' meeting about the year 1875, heard Mother Thurston speak of these children as petted and fondled and treated by the chiefs and chiefesses as if they were beautiful Paris dolls.

Of the second company of missionaries, which arrived on April 27, 1823, Mr. Levi Chamberlain, Superintendent of Secular Affairs, then unmarried, was the only one who remained in Honolulu. In Feb. of that year Rev. Wm. Ellis returned, with his wife, and remained eighteen months. In the latter part of this year, Oct., 1823, Mr. Thurston's went back to Kailua, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, leaving only the Ellises, Loomises and Mr. Chamberlain to assist the Binghamhs during the strenuous years which followed. Sermons were prepared, and teaching, (for this was a boarding school), translating, printing and interpreting were done here, besides the daily household duties. Here the first printed law ever issued in Hawaii was drafted, and here, first in 1826, the riotous seamen smashed the windows, and terror reigned for a time.

The Ellises left in 1824, and in 1827 the Loomises and Dr. Blatchleys, with impaired health, returned to the United States.

From Mr. Bingham's history we learn that "Mr. Chamberlain made a trip of thirty days to windward, conveying supplies to the missionaries and twenty-six thousand copies of our publications for the people. He returned thinner in flesh, if possible, and more care-worn, than before." "Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, neither in good health, and fainting with their cares and labors at Kauai, wishing to relax, came to Honolulu, and joined with Mr. Chamberlain in advising me, if I would prolong my life, to try a visit to some cooler climate on Hawaii." They went, visiting Hilo, Kailua and Lahaina, having a most eventful trip, and returned in Nov., 1827. Early in 1828 Mr. Bingham writes: "I have only Mrs. Bingham and Mr. Chamberlain as missionary helpers." Such was the pressing need of helpers when sixteen new missionaries arrived.

On March 30, 1828, the third company was welcomed in Honolulu. Mrs. Judd, in her "Sketches of Life in the Hawaiian Islands" says: "We were ushered into Mr. Bingham's Parlor, the walls of which were naked clapboards, except one side newly plastered with lime made by burning coral stone from the reef."

In April a general meeting was called, and Mrs. Judd said of the men "they look careworn, feeble and hungry," and later, of the ladies, "most of them look feeble and overworked." The new comers then "busied themselves in trimming and repairing bonnets and modernizing their wardrobes generally. Fashions had changed in seven years "It is a great pleasure to do this, as it brightens the distressed and diverts the minds of the desponding. Some of them have not spirit enough to smile."

In Aug., 1828, Mrs. Judd says: "We are housekeeping in two rooms and a chamber, under the same roof as the Binghams. The clapboards are bare and admit quantities of dust which the trade winds bring in fearful clouds. We have three chairs, a table, a bedstead and a nice little secretary."

In 1834 the Judds still lived in this house, but it is thought they moved across the street, and the Halls occupied it in 1835.

During the ten years interim between 1840, when the Binghamns left, and 1850, when the Cookes moved in, we have found but little to record. Mrs. Judd, in 1847, writing from "Sweet Home" on Nuuanu street, says, "The old homestead in the mission, where we spent such a pleasant seven years together, continues to change occupants and each tenant adds to or subtracts from its niches and cubby-holes."

During these years the Halls occupied the house and, at times, the families of the Rogers, Knapps and Ives. There were probably others. It was a time of transition. The great pioneer work had been done. Missionaries began to live in comparative comfort. Quite a settlement of houses had been built, both about the mission premises and down town. A store was kept where supplies could be had. Prices were low. Six or eight mullet could be had for ten cents. Meat was only six-and-a-fourth cents a pound, while in 1828 Mrs. Judd paid fifty cents for one-and-a-half pounds of beef. Taro and sweet potatoes were plentiful, and quite a herd of cattle which furnished milk were driven back and forth to Round Top every day. Horses were abundant, and required very little feed, getting their living on the green salt marshes.

In 1850 the Cookes took charge, the Ives family leaving in 1851. For many years it was the home of the Cooke family, and then for years it was unoccupied, and almost disappeared from sight and memory.

But now, in 1907, it is resurrected and represents a bit of last century set down in this. It locates the small beginning that has civilized and Christianized, and made these islands what they are. The whole progress of civilization and growth seems written on these clapboards, and the prayers, the tears, the rejoicings are inscribed within. The old walls are painted all over with pictures of the past, and every drop of old plaster is filled with the latent echoes that need but the wand of an interpreter to set them vibrating through the rooms.

ECHOES.

Dr. Bingham taps with memory's wand of 1834, and sees himself a child of three years, lying on a mat on the floor, and from an adjoining room hears a baby's cry. With a child's longing for company, he thinks little Henry Parker, from the Marquesas, has come to be his playmate. He finds, next day, it was the cry of his own little sister, now Mrs. Coan. He sees his father strike a match on the wall and fire come from it. Matches were new in those days. Again, at this back door, he sees a crowd of earnest, dusky faces gathered to hear his father talk about their souls, and he feels the solemnity of the scene.

Dr. Bishop calls forth "Childhood Recollections of the Old Mission House, between 1831 and 1889," and thus records them for us: "No dwelling in the Honolulu of that period was as familiar to me as this one, then occupied by the family of Rev. Hiram Bingham. The one object therein which is most deeply impressed upon memory, is the form of Mrs. Bingham, sitting in her bedroom in a small wing at the east end of the house, in her rocking chair facing mauka, or landwards. She was very commonly with a young child in her lap, or near her. Her aspect was pleasing, rather impressive, but expressing debility—manner calm and patient, and very serious. As a child I did not feel awed by her, but on the whole, attracted.

"The house itself has undergone very little change since those seventy and more years ago. Wall paper was nearly unknown then in Honolulu, and floor matting was barely beginning to be used.

"This house, like the adjacent Chamberlain house, was always, in General Meeting time, crowded with hospitality. The Bishop family from Kailua, in 1835, occupied a cottage of thatch, about where the Kaiulani Home now stands. In 1834, I think, we were entertained by the Judds, who then occupied the west half of the house, the Bishops being lodged in the small wing at that end.

"My most important and vivid memory of the place dates probably on May 17, 1832 when there arrived, in the Averick, a large reinforcement of new missionaries, consisting of nineteen persons. This large company of youngish men and women were assembled in the Bingham's parlor, in the front part of the house. I was then a lad of five, and vividly remember Mr. Alexander, seated next west of the door leading into the diningroom. His marked and pleasant features seem to have particularly impressed my childish mind, forming the only distinct image left on memory.

"The exterior of the premises is indefinite in memory. The town was then arid and waterless; there was no grass in the door-yards. I think there was a hau tree in the front yard but am not sure. The drinking water came from wells sunk through the coral. I recall some interest in a shower bath near the well, one of the instances of Mr. Bingham's mechanical genius. Coming from hot, treeless Kailua I was not painfully impressed then with the dreary, dusty aridity of Honolulu, also nearly treeless.

"When occupying the west-wing-room in 1834 there was in the front yard a pile of planks, from one of which had oozed some pitch, whereby I came to grief. With perhaps more than the usual foolishness of a child, I applied some pitch to my hair, not to be easily removed. Severe reproaches ensued, and the great indignity, as it was felt to be, of having lard rubbed into the pitch to dissolve it, by Dr. Judd's prescription probably.

"Probably in the latter thirties, I recall seeing Mr. Bingham seated at work in his study in the same thatched cottage, east of the house named above, a time when he and my father, Rev. A. Bishop, were still hard at work getting through the press the last part of the Old Testament, and their revisions and proof-sheets used to be continually on the road between Honolulu and Ewa."

Mother Parker, in May, 1833, spent her first night on Hawaii in that garret room and in the morning looked out from the little pointed window and saw a man stalking along sans clothing, except a pair of high top-boots, and her heart sank within her. She recalls Mrs. Bingham's kindness in giving to her, her own trained cook to take to Marquesas.

Mrs. Lydia Bingham Coan sees herself rocking in a cradle with a crooked-neck squash for a doll. Later, her father made wooden dolls for her and her favorite playmate, Helen Judd. She sees herself skipping in delight by the side of her father whom she had called from his study, (a quaint adobe building east by south of the house), to his meals. She sees herself watching, day by day, a sprig of feather flowers which she had planted on the grave of a dead bird, hoping it would take root and grow. She recalls her first business transaction, carried on in the forbidden native language. From a native girl she bought ohias, paying in pins, and fearing discovery she hid them in her mother's bureau drawer and left them till they were spoiled. She sees a centipede on the path from the gate to the front door. She was bitten, had convulsions, and Dr. Judd was summoned. She recalls a Chinese toy, a great treasure, which she put in the east chamber closet and which was ruined by cockroaches. And brooding over all is the memory of the Sabbath sunset hour, when the dear mother gathered her little flock around her and taught them hymns and Bible-verses, and told of the Savior whom she loved, and the Heavenly Father of whose tender care for His children she always assured them.

Mrs. Maria Chamberlain Forbes sees the little hau trees in the front yard where she and Elizabeth Bingham used to climb, placing boards from branch to branch for seats. She remembers the little Rogers girl who flew up the cellar steps wrapped in flames which her mother put out with her bare hands, and how they both lay ill for weeks, and sees the kind father who left his business and cared for them so tenderly. She hears the king's criers as they passed around at evening and called upon the ou-hou, or carriers, to go in the early morning for wood, and sees the great bundles of wood on the shoulders of the men. She sees bundles of ti leaves carried in the same way, and quantities bought for the oxen. When the oxen were unyoked at night the carts made a good place for the children to play.

Miss M. A. Chamberlain's earliest recollections take her back to the new arrivals and the prayer meetings in this old frame house. She sees the old garret still partitioned off with mats. She sees Dr. Bingham's study, around which stood twenty or more ugly idols waiting to be sent to the States, and she has a vivid recollection of kicking them in disdain. She remembers playing "hide and coop," and hears Sereno Bishop calling "coop" from the Chamberlain garret where it was so dark she was afraid to seek him. She sees Persis and Lucy Thurston who were stopping here for General Meeting. They wore long dresses and their hair was done up high with combs. She sees Persis come to the window when she and Mary Thurston were building a playhouse with barrel-staves, and read to them something very interesting, and then question them to see what they remembered. She sees her mother auctioning off the Bingham property, all left behind in 1840. She remembers the blue china which remained unsold and which her mother returned to the Binghams when they came back. She sees Kitty Hall too, the dear little thing, wearing the socks belonging to Maria's doll.

Miss Nellie Judd sees the drip-stone where the water was made less brackish, and the cellar steps where she had a fall.

Mr. Robert Andrews recalls two visits to the Mission house with his mother. At the first meeting, what impressed him most was the presence of a most beautiful fair lady, angelic he thought her. At the next meeting the beautiful lady was still there but shorter and browner than before. The mystery was not explained till he found that the first was Mrs. Castle and the second Mrs. Hall. He also recalls Mr. Bingham's study with its white adobe ends and its steep roof that he was told "would split the rain-drops."

Mrs. W. D. Alexander recalls the great friendship existing between her mother and Mrs. Cooke, and says that the Baldwins always stopped at the Cooke's during General Meeting, and she sees a party of children racing through this and the Chamberlain yard, so happy in finding playmates. She also hears Mrs. Cooke say "We had two new boys that day, and little David (Kalakaua) was so shy he hid behind the door."

Mrs. Kittie Hall Jones says: "The old Mission house was my home until I was eight years old. It was a double house, and at the time of my birth my parents occupied the part nearest the Chamberlains. In one of the rooms of the coral annex I was born, but I do not recollect living in that part, nor do I know how old I was when we moved into the Waikiki side. Stone steps with a little platform led to the front door, which opened into the parlor, a narrow room with a large opening leading into the dining room. On the Waikiki side was a bed-room, with another beyond, which had an outside door. A small lean-to was where my bed was, and this room was used for many other things. Upstairs there were three bedrooms. My two sisters occupied one, and my brother one. The other was a guest room.

"The most fascinating thing about the house was a little square opening cut in the partition between the two halls, upstairs, and the young members of the Ives and Hall families delighted in crawling through this opening. How this was accomplished without accident is hard to tell, for on the Ives side the stairs were directly below it, and only by a swing of the body could the balustrade be reached, first with the feet, while the hands grasped—I do not remember what until the floor was safely reached. Most thrilling were these expeditions and each one was eager for his turn.

"To get to the kitchen we had to go down one or two steps. It was a good sized room with a large open fireplace and a brick oven at the side. The meals were cooked in iron pots hung from large hooks in the fireplace, and a weekly baking of bread, pies, beans and Indian pudding was baked in the oven. We also had a large iron pot which stood on legs. It had a deep cover on which a fire of coals was made, and meats were cooked in this way. A tin oven, with a cylinder at each end in which a fire was made, with a door at the side, was used during the week for light baking.

"In both front and back yards were wells with pumps, and we each had to take his turn every day in filling the tubs for household use, and each had to fill the bath-tub for his own bath.

"The trees in the yard were mostly hau with some kamani. These trees were a delight to us children, for in them we made our play-houses. The walls about the place were adobe. These also afforded us much pleasure, for we would dig holes in them and make ovens, cupboards, and all sorts of things that delight a child's heart.

"I have nothing but the most delightful memories of those early days spent in the old Mission home, and the spot is very sacred because of so many very tender and loving thoughts of the dear missionary fathers and mothers whom it was our privilege to have abide with us from time to time."

Mrs. Juliet Cooke Atherton recalls the kamani tree in the back yard, where she and Kittie Hall used to play; the little square window at the top of the stairs through which they used to crawl; the spinning-wheel in the top loft that could only be reached by a ladder; the two kitchens, each with a great oven, and the cellar where was kept the barrel of vinegar and the barrel of molasses. The flour was not kept here though it was musty and so packed that it had to be cut with an ax, and sifted. She sees and hears the first piano with melodeon attachment. She remembers the first Chinaman, Jock, who attacked some of them with a knife. She recalls the first mango.

Some guest had paid an extravagant price for it and left the parings and seed on the plate, and she and several others had a nibble at the seed. They played "I spy," "hop scotch," and "pua." They made excursions to Punch Bowl or to the beach before breakfast, and greatly delighted to wade in the slimy pools and ponds. They named these lakes and capes and isthmuses and thus fixed their geography lessons. Their breakfasts consisted of taro and milk, or sweet-potatoes and milk. Some used pia and molasses. The cows were cared for by a one-armed Hawaiian, who drove them back and forth to Round Top, but the boys did the milking. They entertained a great deal, and she hears her mother say, "This is the first meal we have had alone for three months." At General Meeting the house was full. The Baldwins always stopped here. They used to bring quantities of sweet-potatoes, taro and bananas. They brought such large potatoes. One lasted us for seven meals. I see it now!"

Miss Frances Johnson sees four girls, Juliett, Frances, Emileta and Lou, sitting on one bed till the wee small hours, talking in hushed tones and vowing eternal friendship.

Mrs. Lucy Taylor Winne, who as a little girl stopped with her sister Mary for a few weeks at this house, recalls the popularity of the young ladies, Patty and Juliett Cooke, and the frequent calls of the Judd boys and other young men.

Mr. Frank Cooke remembers how frequently his father was called upon to cut hair, and sees a restless boy having his locks shorn, and getting his ear nipped by the shears. He also recalls a tingling sensation from the hair-brush used as a rod of correction. He hears, too, the sound of the chain-pump as he drew water for his sister's bath, and he wishes these echoes would cease.

But this is not the tithe of what the old house has to tell. Every cubby hole is full of history; the great fire-place with its swinging crane, the bake-oven, and the little rooms under the eaves, each has its story, and we would record them all, "lest we forget."

ECHOES FROM THE FIRST MORNING STAR

(Read by Mrs. Lydia Bingham Coan at the Annual Meeting.

From my brother's private journal, wherein are recorded some of his experiences during the voyage of Morning Star No. 1, from Boston to Hawaii, I make the following extracts of records for April 23rd and 24th, 1857, just fifty years ago this week. On the 23rd they were nearing the coast of Oahu. "I went on deck where I was interested in watching a small schooner near by, crowded with natives. Capt. Moore lowered his boat to visit her for some potatoes, etc. Just then a young white man shouted out, 'Welcome to the Morning Star!' and three hearty cheers were raised by the natives. In a moment Capt. Moore had boarded the little vessel and received a most cordial welcome. He soon returned with two individuals, one of whom addressed me by the familiar name of Hiram, introducing himself as Orramel Gulick. The gentleman accompanying him was the Rev. Mr. Bond, of Kohala, H. They had left Honolulu at 4 p. m., the day previous, and were bound for Hawaii. Their schooner was the Kamehameha IV, owned and commanded by Orramel. * * Very shortly after their departure, a fine breeze sprang up and we rapidly approached Diamond Head. Native houses were seen in clusters along the shore, romantically placed under lofty cocoanut trees. Soon horses, men and women and one dog were seen. At sunset we were off Diamond Head. I clambered up to the main cross-trees, where I obtained my first glimpse of Honolulu (after an absence of nearly seventeen years). I had scarcely uttered 'Hurrah for Honolulu,' when Clara, sweeping the plain with the good glass, discovered the Stone Church, much to the satisfaction of all. The cocoanut groves of Waikiki were soon abeam and the beautiful valley of Manoa attracted my attention, while memory went back to childhood days. A boat was discovered ahead; this proved to be from the pilot, the officer in command introducing himself as boat steerer for the pilot. He advised the captain to stand off and on for the night, to avoid getting to the leeward of the harbor. * * * The evening we spent in packing."

For April 24, the chronicle runs thus: "Early in the morning as we were slowly approaching the harbor the steam-tug, Pele, met us, bringing out Mr. Henry Whitney, Mr. Jackson and the pilot, Capt. Luce. The entrance to the harbor is well marked by a line of buoys. The reefs were covered with natives, searching for crabs. Upon reaching the wharf Evarts Chamberlain first met us, then Charles and Frank Judd. A large number of natives of every age thronged the wharf. Mrs. Judd with Helen and Laura drove up in a carriage and took in Clara, while I rode with Evarts. We all proceeded directly to Mrs. Chamberlain's. Dr. Judd, Mr. L. Smith, Mr. Clark, Mr. Castle, Mr. Cook and Mr. Armstrong soon called; afterward Mr. Bishop, Mr. Strong, the pastor of Fort St. Church, and John II. After the custom we sang a hymn, and prayer was offered to return thanks that we had been safely brought to these shores. Later in the day Evarts escorted me to various places of interest; to the custom house where I paid one dollar for a permit to land personal baggage; to the machine shop and grist mill where Robert Andrews is employed, whom Evarts calls the only mechanic of the missionary children. The mill is employed in grinding Maui wheat and Hawaiian corn. The Post Office is quite an establishment, Mr. Jackson postmaster, Alvah Clark is clerk. Adjoining is the office of Henry Whitney, editor of Commercial Advertiser. The old fort is much dilapidated. From a window in the mill we enjoyed a fine view of Nuuau Valley; and the new jail which criminals are building on the western side of Honolulu harbor. A steam dredge is constantly at work in clearing the harbor. Of course the city has changed much. The least change has taken place in the vicinity of the mission premises. In the afternoon Clara dear called with me on Mrs. Cooke, who kindly showed us through the apartments of the house in which I was born, also through the garden and father's study. The rooms remain much as they were. Both parts of the house are occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Cooke and their seven children. The old kitchen (now occupied as a store room) with the old fire place, the old east window and the old west door most forcibly carried me back to childhood days. Methought I could see mother preparing some relishable meal for her dear ones, while I was near the west door, scraping taro. Where was once a partition between the parlor and dining room, against which stood the old clock, there are now folding doors. The chambers remain as formerly—the old stairs are as natural as ever. Some of the hau trees have been cut down and the garden is now a greensward. The study has been shingled. The old fig trees still stand. The hau trees all appear smaller than youthful imagination had fancied them. The old garret window was not forgotten, nor the window over the stairs which connected the two parts of the house. The three wells I noticed with interest, especially the one near the study. The front gate remains and the adobe walls. Mother's bedroom where my eyes first beheld the light was to me an interesting spot. The study, where my honored father so arduously labored in the translation of the Bible and in personal conversation with awakened souls, is now the crowded abode of Chinese. Mrs. Cooke was very kind in her attentions and appeared to sympathize with me as I mentioned various incidents of boyhood."

OUR MISSIONARIES

Mr. and Mrs. Delaporte arrived on the Suveric March 1st on their way from Nauru, for a well-earned vacation in the fatherland. They spent about a week in Honolulu, and left little Augusta and Paul at the Castle Home, under the efficient care of the Misses Johnson.

Isaiah said, "The isles shall wait for thy law," and Mr. Delaporte says that Nauru waited nearly nineteen hundred years for the light-giving law. Nauru was one of the poorest of the South Sea Islands when they landed, eight years ago. There are no rivers, and the wells contain only brackish water. Rain water is at a premium. The inhabitants are of fine physical appearance, but were dirty and lazy, and spent their time in smoking, drinking gin, and doing nothing. They were not cannibals but were nearly so, and had a bad name among the islands. They consulted spirits and were afraid to go out at night because of ghosts. The frigate bird was the personification of these spirits and could not be eaten. The turtle, also, was the habitation of spirits and was tabu. Now both are enjoyed.

This was the condition eight years ago. Mr. Delaporte says they have had a hard fight to bring the improvement, but are rejoicing in success. It was done, not by man, but by the power of the Holy Spirit. The population of Nauru is fifteen hundred and fifty. Nine hundred and twenty of these have been baptized and six hundred are members of the church. Christian men send their children to school. They have family worship, and all over the island may be heard songs of praise.

To accomplish so much the missionaries have not been idle. On the Sabbath, a service is held at six o'clock in the morning. The Christian Endeavor meets at eight; the Sunday School at ten, and preaching service at eleven. In the afternoon services are held at three of the outlying stations. During these years the whole of the Old and New Testaments have been translated and printed, besides hymn-books, geographies, Bible-stories, Pilgrim's Progress, Robinson Crusoe, and other books. A training school has been kept up, where workers and teachers are trained as helpers. Some of these are very bright boys. One has committed the whole of the New Testament. These have assisted in printing, typewriting, house-building, cooking, in the care of the sick, in singing and in the meetings. The missionary must be doctor, carpenter, peacemaker, as well as shepherd of the sheep. He finds these helpers very apt and says they will compare favorably with young people in the homeland.

It is well that this awakening comes previous to the exploitation of phosphate of lime on the island by a London company, which has made Nauru one of the richest of the Micronesian islands. Within the last two years there have been imported 150 Europeans and 100 Chinamen, and these will have a vast influence upon the people. All have been favored financially and it remains to be seen how many will withstand the temptations of prosperity. Happily, this company has Christian leaders who have been very helpful to the mission. Old Nauru has passed away, and prayers are asked for the new Nauru. The aloha of the Cousins goes with these faithful missionaries on their journey.

Miss Lucia Lyon's letters, written to family friends, cannot be condensed without losing their originality. We only wish they could be copied entire. They are merely a series of pictures, a panorama of her life in China, giving surroundings, dress, companions, pupils, school-life, village scenes pathetic and amusing, study, work and recreations, till we feel that we have a bit of China, and mission work in China, brought to our very doors. Our sympathy and love go out to this brave young worker.

Cousin Henry Judd, another young worker, a missionary in the home field, writes breezy letters from the mountains of North Carolina. He preaches at six stations in rotation, holding two preaching services every Sunday and conducting Sunday-schools in two places. He occupies a comfortable log cabin where he studies mornings, and from which he starts out, on horse-back, to make his afternoon calls. He takes his meals across the road. A transformation is going on in the mountains, he says, the seed is bearing fruit, and the work is most interesting.

Mrs. Marion Dillingham Erdman, who has spent the winter in Honolulu, says, "Japan is a most beautiful and picturesque country, and its people and language so interesting that it is a pleasure to study and work there. Yamaguchi is a country town, 300 miles

S. W. of Kobe and nine miles off the railroad, which distance is easily covered in  $1\frac{1}{2}$  or 2 hours by jinrikishaw. The town is important because of its schools, children from all over the western part of the country coming here for their education. There are also barracks from which soldiers were sent to Manchuria at the time of the war, also quite a large hospital." Mrs. Erdman speaks of visiting the sick and showing them pictures, giving them flowers which they appreciate so much, and distributing tracts. It was encouraging to see how eagerly they received these tracts.

There is also a mission school for girls in Yamaguchi, and Mrs. Erdman had charge of most of the music, teaching choral classes, organ and piano. She sometimes invited the girls to spend the afternoon with her, and served tea and cake in foreign style, which they enjoyed, though they were always most embarrassed about the spoons. Mr. Erdman's work is the overseeing of seven different out-stations, each of which is supplied by an evangelist. Besides this he has Bible-class students from the schools in Yamaguchi. This year the first two students from the Normal school came out publicly for Christ and received baptism, which was an encouragement.

THE SCHOOLS

Hilo Boarding School received a Christmas present of $3,000 from cousin G. N. Wilcox, which wiped out the overhanging debt and gave joy and gladness to all its friends. It was a fitting gift, not only because this city of his birth has cherished for more than seventy years this important centre of education, but also because the present teachers and pupils have so faithfully done their part to advance its usefulness. The new building was finished in September, 1905, and all Hilo has since been working to liquidate the debt. No wonder that Mrs. Lyman says, "The slip of blue paper brought cheer with its every crisp crinkle."

Maunaolu and Kohala Girls' Schools are still sustaining the high grade of scholarship and character-building they have been noted for hitherto, and Maunaolu is making effort to fill all vacancies among the students.

HILO BOYS' BOARD

Mills Institute is also prospering, and is busy educating leaders for the awakening China, though all are feeling more and more their restricted quarters.

Kawaiahao Seminary, however, has suffered most from its environment. Though there have been no deaths, and the weary teachers and pupils are holding steadily on in their faithful round of duties, it has been through sickness and tribulation, and they have well deserved the sympathy of the community. But as ever, "The darkest hour is just before the dawn," and now the day breaks, and this old historic school is to be merged into the greater one.

The Mid-Pacific Institute is now more than the beautiful image the sculptor sees in a block of granite. The Hawaiian Board has chiseled out the foundation by purchasing, on March 15th, between 36 and 37 acres of land in Manoa valley—the old Kidwell estate. To do this they sold to the Methodist church the premises of the North Pacific Missionary Institute, and to the Castle estate the land on which Kawaiahao Seminary stands. "The site forms an ideal location within one block of the Rapid Transit line. The ground commands a beautiful view of mountain and sea, and there is ample room for the agricultural features which have been planned. The land contains a fine spring of water yielding some 100,000 gallons a day, and is further supplied with the use of an auwai for part of the time."

Mrs. S. C. Allen, who has long been a friend of Kawaiahao Seminary, has generously donated $5,000 toward the girls' department, and Mrs. Atherton has given $35,000 in memory of her husband, Hon. J. B. Atherton, to be used in the erection of a memorial building that shall adequately house the future Kawaiahao.

Funds are being sought to erect a building for a boys' department which will accommodate the Mills Institute and the Japanese and Korean schools. The hope is also to endow this Mid-Pacific Institute richly.

This image which the fertile brains of the Hawaiian Board see in the undeveloped Mid-Pacific Institute is a magnificent one, and will require thousands of dollars, a vast amount of brain power and years of time to bring to perfection, but it promises much for Hawaii and for the world.

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST

have been many and stirring, beginning with the San Francisco earthquake in April. In May, at the Hawaiian Evangelical Association, there was formed, through the indefatigable perseverance of Rev. E. B. Turner, assistant pastor of Central Union Church, and others, a Sunday School Association embracing all the Sunday Schools on the islands, of every nationality and denomination.

In June, Dr. Kincaid resigned the pastorate of the Central Union Church and was soon followed by the talented young pastor, J. Walter Sylvester, D. D.

In June, also, was completed the first irrigation scheme on Hawaii, where by combined ditching and tunneling, water was taken from the rugged mountains, around the northern shoulder of the island, westerly, to the plantations, greatly benefiting all that region.

In July came the wreck of the Manchuria off Waimanalo with the many missionaries aboard on their way to the Orient. In August the Sheridan was wrecked off Barber's Point, Oahu, and in September occurred the wreck of the Mongolia at Midway. No lives were lost, but such unusual happenings greatly stirred the sympathy of Honolulu society.

In October was held at Williamstown, Mass. the Haystack Centennial, which had so much to do with the evangelization of these islands. A number of the Cousins attended, "almost enough for a Cousins' Meeting," and others were there in spirit.

In November, Dr. James L. Barton, of the A. B. C. F. M., in passing through to Japan was given a reception at the old Kawaiahao church.

In December occurred the development of electric power at Waihiha, Kauai, where a large flow of mountain water on the north side of Waialeale, which already irrigated rice and taro lands on the lower levels, was utilized before reaching those levels, converted into electricity and carried around the east flank of the mountain, thirty-five miles, to the south side, and made to run irrigating plants at Makaweli.

On Jan 10 began the volcanic flow from Mauna Loa and renewed activity in the crater of Kilauea. Quoting from Rev. E. W. Thwing in The Friend, "In no part of the world was there a more marvelous or grandly spectacular display than on the island of Hawaii. Here is the great volcanic mountain of Mauna Loa, more than 13,000 feet in height. Down its sloping sides for nearly two weeks flowed the molten lava, torrents of burning and glowing rock, moving for miles downward toward the sea. And following this tremendous display of the world's hidden fires, which was watched by hundreds of people, a new outbreak of golden lava and tossing fountains of fire occurred in the world's famous crater of Kilauea, thirty miles away."

On Feb. 1st, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Jones presented to the Hawaiian Board, for a permanent home, a two-story building on Alakea and Merchant streets.

On Feb. 4th the lease of the old Mission property was given by C. M. Cooke to the H. M. C. Society for a Cousins' home.

From Feb. 10 to 17 Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, D. D., held a series of union services of remarkable interest.

On Feb. 27, Miss Bertha Conde, (daughter of Rev. Samuel Conde and granddaughter of one of the early missionaries), and Miss Harriet Taylor, came as visiting secretaries of the Y. W. C. A., en route to the world conferences at Tokyo and Shanghai, and were welcomed by young and old. On the same steamer came Bishop Cranston of the Methodist church and Dean Bosworth from Oberlin. These also remained over for ten days, and Honolulu had a busy and delightful week of service. Dr. Bosworth's daily lectures on the Bible were a great uplift to the throng of people who heard them.

A visit from Joel and Mrs. Bean has been a source of pleasure. They say: "Forty-five years ago we met a cordial welcome in the sweet homes of the Fathers and Mothers of this mission. There were great souls and genial hearts and refined spirits among them, to whom we became bound in a life-long friendship and fellowship. We saw, on the quiet Sabbath days, the large houses of worship filled with natives. We saw them gather for early morning prayer at the blowing of the conch-shell. We saw the Bible in nearly all their homes and native Christians who had read it through over and over again in their daily devotions. We felt the grasp of their hands and heard the sweet 'aloha' as they crowded around us at the close of their meetings, and our hearts were drawn to them with an undying Christian interest."

Honolulu has been interested in the unveiling, at Hampton, of a remarkably lifelike bust of Gen. Armstrong, by Mrs. E. Cadwalader Guild.

Another item of interest is the purchase of the old Alexander parsonage, so replete with the history of the Armstrongs, Clarks and Alexanders, by Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Baldwin, who have given it to the Hawaiian Board for the use of its missionaries, Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Dodge.

Had we space we would tell of the building of the new church at Kahului, and the calling of a pastor, Rev. John E. Dodge, the father of R. B. Dodge; Rev. A. S. Baker's work at Kona and Rev. John

MOTHER CASTLE

Lydgate's on Kauai; of the splendid settlement work being done by Rev. and Mrs. Rath at Palama and by Mr. and Mrs. Ryder at Kakaako; of the great work at the Kamehameha Schools; and of the far reaching mission work among the Chinese, Japanese and Hawaiians by such strong men as the Reverends Scudder, Thwing and Gulick.

THE MOTHERS

The pearly gates of the heavenly city opened wide once more, and closed, to let in another of the dear Missionary mothers. Mother Castle has long been waiting, with her lamp trimmed and burning, for the coming of the Bride-groom, and it was not a day of sadness when the loved one was welcomed to the marriage feast. The light she had held for years had not been hidden under a bushel, and many a pilgrim had been directed in the narrow way by its bright beams. She also shared her oil with those less fortunate, so that they, too, went shining on their way. She obeyed the command, "Let your light so shine among men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Her departure is beautifully described by Cousin Anna Paris, who read at memorial service of Woman's Board the following poem:

Mother Castle

Soft falls the light on hill and vale,
On rocky slopes the shadows play—
Precursors of the radiant hour
That comes to bless the close of day.

Serenely watching overhead,
White clouds illumine heaven's dome,
As if, like bright-robed messengers,
They fain would guide some spirit home.

Fit hour for tired soul's release,
 While nature broods—while on the air
 Uniting earth and Heaven there rests
 The halo of an evening prayer.

Fit hour for the loved soul to leave
 The earthly way she long had trod,
 Helping the weary and the weak—
 To find her Home—her Rest—her God!

And as the orb whose course is run,
 In loveliness fades into night—
 So with the glory of life's eve
 Enfolding her, she passed from sight.

But not alone! Love followed her—
 The love of a great throng. No race
 But some had touched her garment's hem,
 Had seen God's image on her face.

No boundary lines her creed enclosed,
 No thought was hers of place or name,
 The need was great, she freely gave—
 Would not the Master do the same?

When clouds hung dark o'er ways untried
 Hers was the vision clear—from far
 She saw the coming of the Dawn—
 She saw its bright prophetic star!

Death can not claim her. Life now comes
 To crown the years—to open wide Heaven's portals! Lo, she enters in—
 We see the human glorified!

Mother Parker, whose centenary was chronicled in the fifty-fourth annual report, has passed another milestone and her years now number one-hundred-and-one. She has grown more feeble and seems less of earth than before. She says "I can not see you, but I hear your voice. I am well, but I think I must be getting very old. Give my love to all the friends."

Mother Rice, who celebrated her 90th birthday on Oct. 11, 1906, is still in full possession of mind and memory. She cherishes in thought old friends and loves their children and their children's children. The Hawaiians are as her brothers and sisters and their interests are her care. The great delight of her old age is in advancing Christ's cause along every line, and no one can estimate her power for good during these prolonged years. The Friend, of November, tells of an hour set aside by the Evangelical Association of Kauai for thanksgiving to God that her life had been extended. Addresses were made by Rev. J. M. Lydgate, Rev. J. B. Hanaiki, Rev. O. H. Gulick and Mr. W. H. Rice, Sr. Rev. Hanaiki gave a historical sketch of the life of Mother Rice, and said that the Hawaiian churches and pastors who had received aid from her during these years could not be numbered, and the philanthropic, educational and misisonary causes that had been helped by her were legion. Rev. Gulick spoke of her as his teacher at Punahou in the days of long ago, and of her having early learned and praticed the precept, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Mr. W. H. Rice spoke in Hawaiian and said that his grandfather had been a missionary to the Indian tribes in the northern states in early times, so that his mother had from childhood been familiar with the joys and trials of missionary life. Never had a son, he said, more cause to honor his mother.

Rev. Lydgate represented life as a day, with its morning, noon and night, and said, "The ideal lives are those in which morning promise and noonday accomplishment are followed by an afternoon of peace and joy. Such a life is that of our missionary mother, whose 90th birthday we celebrate today—Mother Rice. ‘They also serve who only stand and wait.’ The active service of a busy, restless life is commendable. When God bids us ‘go’ we may not wait. When God bids us work we may not rest, but there is a waiting service which is just as commendable and just as much a service to the world as the busy life. To this anxious, nervous, busy age of ours such a life as Mother Rice’s, simple, quiet, restful, full of joy and peace, waiting upon the Lord, brings a lesson of great significance and value. We recall this morning with pleasure and profit the earlier missionary days of devotion and sacrifice; let us remember, too, these days of patience and peace while she waits for the welcome call of the Master.”

In this revered list of Mothers we place Mother Bishop, now in her eighty-second year, and Cousin Mother Forbes, seventy-five years old, who all their lives have done earnest mission work, whose husbands have both served under the American Board of Missions, and whom the love of all the Cousins would crown with this most precious title, “Mother.”

There are other worthy ones, and why not, as the years go by, let them graduate into the class of precious Mission Mothers.

THE COUSINS

“Among so many, can He care?
 Can special love be everywhere?
 A myriad homes,—a myriad ways—
 And God’s eye over every place?
 “I asked; my soul bethought of this;—
 In just that very place of His
 Where he hath put and keepeth you,
 God hath no other thing to do.”

This has been a year when the earth has trembled under the mighty hand of God, and all nature has been shaken by His power.

Our family of cousins is large—nine hundred and forty-six, besides honorary members—and these are scattered from the east to the west and from Alaska to the South Seas. Some have been in railroad wrecks during the year, many were shaken by the San Francisco earthquake and pursued by fire, and some were at the still more dreadful Valparaiso disaster.

In the hurricane in the South Seas, in ship-wreck on our own and other shores, in perils on land and perils by sea, you have been, dear cousins, yet God was there too, and brought you in safety through it all. Some of you have watched the streams of molten rock rushing down the sides of our own Mauna Loa, and gazed into Kilauea's awful depths and there felt the overwhelming presence of God in nature. Yet the Cousins are safe, and not in many years have there been so few deaths to record.

Our dear cousin, Hattie Coan, quietly passed away on July 23, 1906, her noble life finished, her great work accomplished. She even finished the last day of her last term of school, and then estimating the few days left, she busied herself in setting her house in order and getting ready for the last journey and the eternal vacation in the land of bliss.

Dr. Kittredge, who was, thirty or more years ago, a beloved physician on Maui and in Hilo, died among his children and friends in Santa Barbara, Cal., Jan. 11, 1907, a sheaf fully ripe.

Dr. Pease, a heroic missionary physician in the sultry islands of Micronesia for many years, died at Claremont, Cal., Nov. 28, 1906, leaving trained workers behind him, and translations that will live to carry on the work he left behind.

Mrs. Celia Chamberlain, who so faithfully filled the niche God gave her to occupy, and who patiently drank her cup of pain and sorrow, passed on Feb. 1st within the veil to receive the welcome, "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

These all laid them down and slept. And a little one, the infant son of A. R. and Mrs. Bindt, opened his eyes on this world of care, only to pass on, a beckoning cherub, to a more happy clime.

There has been universal sympathy with Cousin Mildred Kinney Wells, whose husband was so seriously injured by a fall over a precipice while on duty as school inspector on Maui, but we rejoice that he is now on a fair way to recovery.

Mrs. Atherton, also, had the sympathy of all in her injuries in the train-wreck on the mainland, but we are thankful that her life was spared to us, and that she has recovered her strength again.

The Shut-ins, including Miss Martha Chamberlain, our former secretary, and others who have been called from the front of the army of workers to rest by the wayside—are they to be pitied, or shall we not congratulate them on being called to the hilltops to overlook the conflict, and to see the great forces for good, which they laboriously helped to set in motion, moving onward with irresistible and increasing power? They should not feel that they have been taken from the work, but only into the inner, praying circle, near the Leader.

Scores of Island Cousins have been to the mainland during the year and returned, some have visited beautiful Japan, and others have been to Germany, England, Australia and New Zealand. Some still remain away. Mrs. E. Waterhouse and daughters are taking in the World's Sunday School Convention at Rome, and will visit England before their return. Mrs. H. H. Wilcox and Miss Carrie Green will prolong their stay in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen write of returning health and the pleasure of being with their son Spencer, in Oberlin, Ohio.

The Hawaiian Islands are becoming more and more a "Wayside Inn" where the world's passengers rest a bit, and we have thus met, this year, many charming people, and have been honored by rare visitors. Sometimes our own cousins give a passing call. Mrs. Julia Lyman Day and Dr. Day, on their way from the Orient to their home in Los Angeles, spent a few weeks in Hilo; Rev. and Mrs. Cheek, returning from Siam, were borne by loving hands to Kauai for a week's visit; Mrs. Helen Street Ranney and her husband were welcomed with open arms by friends of her mother and grandfather. Miss Jennie Armstrong was a very welcome visitor whom the San Francisco earthquake sent, as a refugee, to this quiet resting place. Mrs. Mary Rice Scott, also hastened back to the safe and solid mountains of her childhood. Mrs. Augustus Lowell Smith returned home in July, and spent a few months here. She writes that her visit did her great good and she never before felt so like work. She and Lottie Lee Hartwell are devoting themselves to voice-culture in Boston. Mr. Erdman came from Japan and left his family for the winter. Rev. Dr. Frear and wife and Miss Frear, also Miss Grace Cooke, came in November. Mrs. Belle Carter Crehore and Mr. Will Lewers were among those welcomed home. Mr. Seymour Hall, Sam Baldwin and the Lowrey boys spent a few months, and R. S. Andrews a few weeks on these happy isles, and Mrs. McCulley Higgins and W. W. Waterhouse made flying visits. Mrs. Maggie Hardy Dean has arrived for a visit with her father, and Rev. and Mrs. John Gulick have returned to spend their last years.

“Where languid summer weaves her subtle spell,
And beauty sinks to sleep within each dell.”

Dr. Gulick expressed the thought of many a kamaaina when he wrote,

“O calm retreat upon the sunlit seas,
O quiet shades, beyond this toil and strife;—
Beyond the ceaseless rush and busy whirl!
On your fair shores may I my canvas furl,
And rest from all this care and fevered life,
Waiting the final call, when God shall please.”

LETTERS FROM COUSINS

Hon G. D. Gilman writes: "The Annual Report is ever a pleasant reminder of mission days of long ago. The same spirit seems to continue, even to children's children, that was in those who devoted themselves to the service of the Master, in the long ago. The laborers pass on, one by one, but the blessedness of the labor continues until the full fruition of 'The rest that remaineth for the children of God.' "

Mrs. Caroline Rogers Deming writes: "Enclosed please find my one dollar for dues. It is many, many years since I left the home of my childhood, but it has always been home to me. Every bright moonlight brings to mind the Cousins Society. I can not tell you how much I prize the album. Every one who sees it takes an interest in it."

Miss E. D. Chapin writes lovingly of Lahaina, and says her mother's ill health was the cause of her parents' return to The States.

Mrs. H. Dickson Howard writes: "I do enjoy them—the Reports—so much. My thoughts often dwell upon those delightful gatherings and I still enjoy the memory of them. From them I learn much of my dear Island friends, and Oh, how many have gone home—to the home not made with hands. What a blessed gathering of Cousins will be held above, 'some sweet day, by and bye.' "

Miss Susan A. Searle says: We shall be glad to see any of the Cousins in Kobe as they pass through."

Miss Grace Van Duzee wrote from Lancaster, N. Y., in Dec., of the cold and the snowstorms, where trees, bushes and trolley poles were covered with the beautiful snow. "It makes the thought of your green hills and valleys very interesting."

Miss H. E. Carpenter enjoyed, so much, her visit to the Haystack Centennial, where she met many Island people. She has since had calls from cousins Mary Goodale, C. A. Bailey and others. She says,

"Are you not glad that you went to the Islands when so many of the old missionaries were living? How kindly they took us to their hearts and homes." She speaks of Mother Green's fine, manly, Christian grandsons, one a graduate of the school of technology, last summer, and the younger one a student in the same school. She tells of Miss Potter, and also that Mrs. Geo. Beckwith and daughters have built them a home at Montclair, N. J.

Mrs. M. L. Smith, formerly of Maunaolu, writes of the earthquake as felt in Oakland, says the subsequent relief work nearly used her up, and she is resting at the home of her brother in Tacoma, but expects to spend the summer in the East.

Miss H. E. Norton, after speaking of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Jones' gift to the Hawaiian Board says, "What joy it must be to be able to do such things, and what a joy to the Master that his followers have the heart to bestow for His kingdom. Dear Hawaii, if it can be kept under the direction of the founders of its civilization, will continue to be a sort of training school for other portions of the nations."

Rev. Arthur C. Logan writes from Hankow, China, Dec. 5, 1906: "The 54th Annual Report of the H. M. C. Soc. has just reached me after following me nearly all over China. I shall be traveling a good deal in the next year or two, but will let you know when I am definitely settled."

Mrs. Beulah Logan Tuthill says: "Through you I wish to send my greeting to the Hawaiian Mission Children's Society of which I have been a member for a number of years. It has been hard to keep in close touch with the friends in Hawaii who have made our visits in Honolulu so delightful. It has not been possible to express to them my appreciation of all their kindness, not only to me but also to my Father and Mother in years gone by, but that appreciation and love still abides, and is one of the most precious memories of my life. Accept good wishes for the good work the Society is doing, and very best wishes and a blessing upon each member as you serve for the Master."

Mrs. Mary Andrews Nott wrote a beautifully descriptive letter from the Sierras where she spent the summer with her daughters. She told of the great granite peaks, snow-capped and dressed in forests of pine and fir; of Donner Lake and its legends; of the dashing stream of cold water at the tent door; of the moonlight on the clouds below; and of the excursions "the children" were making from there. Later she writes from Oakland, after a severe illness, that she is slowly creeping back to health.

Mrs. Laura Wight wrote to Miss Chamberlain from Berlin, of the parade when the king and queen of Denmark came to Berlin. "The German Kaiser," she says, "is very fine looking and is very fond of gold lace and glory, and as a king does not come to call every day in the week, the streets were all trimmed in great display. I particularly noticed the cape of ermine the queen of Denmark wore."

Miss Lizzie Simpson writes: "My sister Dora's address is Miss Dora Simpson, M. D., Jhelum, India, Good Samaritan Hospital. She has been there for the past four years, a medical misisonary sent by the United Presbyterian Church. She seems very happy in her work, and her health has not suffered from the fervor of India's heat. In her last letter she said there were seventeen patients in the hospital, and from 15 to 90 out-patients coming for medical treatment daily. The yearly report showed about 16,000 cases treated during the year. My brother, Rev. Edwin Simpson, is also a missionary in India. He is at Kohlapur, in the The Western Mission of the Presbyterian Church, and has been in India just one month longer than Dora. They, with Edwin's wife, spent the summer vacation together at Cashmere, and wrote of the great beauty of that place. Sister Margaret is now here, teaching in the college of Christiansburg. I have been at home for the last ten months, have taught some in the college, have been busy but not overburdened.

Hawaii! that lovely country! I have never wavered in my thought that I would like to spend my life in benevolent work in that land, and should a call come while there is still energy in me, I should surely want to go to stay."

Rev. Frank Thompson, seaman's chaplain at Valparaiso, Chili, formerly pastor of Hilo Foreign Church, writes: "We have had a most awful experience from the earthquake and the subsequent fires. The official reports put the list of killed at twenty-five hundred. The injured are about 18,000, and 70,000 or more are without homes, living in tents, sheds, or camps in the open places or on the hillsides. One half the city is wiped out. The water pipes, gas pipes and sewers are broken up; the railroads to and from the city are all disabled by landslides, broken bridges and caved-in tunnels. The cemeteries with their tombs, graves and monuments are all burst up, and the remains of the dead were scattered about. Hundreds of bodies have been gathered up and re-interred. The city was in total darkness save the terrible lightnings and electric lights in the heavens, and afterward the glow of burning ruins gave light enough for four days and nights. My family are safe and uninjured. Our oldest daughter, Carrie, with her husband, has been in Scotland for a year, and they were well out of the trouble. Our second daughter, Dora, babe, and husband escaped all personal harm, as Mrs. Thompson and myself did."

Mrs. Dr. Andrews writes from Detroit, Mich., of a happy winter, though she has missed the outdoor life during the severe winter weather because of pneumonia in the Autumn. But on May 1st, she and Winnifred expected to leave the city and spend the summer in a village near, "where we may live amid the rollicking laughter of bobolinks, the soft-voiced sound of song birds and the sound of running brooks. The apple-trees shall bloom for us and fill the air with sweetest perfume, the cherry, and the pear, and the plum. The flowers, also shall add their caressing loveliness and perfume,—lilacs and syringa, perhaps a snow-ball here and there, with flowering-almond, peony and the rose sisterhood. Oh, it is good to be alive amid all this wonderful season."

Whereas Clarence Hyde Cooke, President, Albert Francis Judd, Vice-President, Maria Sheeley Andrews, Secretary, Robert Wilson Andrews, Recorder, and Lyle Alexander Dickey, Treasurer of an association known as The Hawaiian Mission Children's Society have in behalf and by authority of the said association made application to me, as Treasurer of the Territory of Hawaii, to grant the said association a charter of incorporation under the corporate name of The Hawaiian Mission Children's Society for the purposes of perpetuating the memory of the missionary fathers and mothers who brought Christianity to these Islands, of promoting union among its members, of cultivating in them an active missionary spirit, stirring them up to good deeds and of assisting in the support of Christian work.

Campbell, as such Treasurer as aforesaid, and by and with the consent of the Governor of the Territory and in the exercise and execution of every power and authority in any wise enabling me in this behalf, do hereby constitute the members of the said association a body corporate under the name of The Hawaiian Mission Children's Society for the term of fifty years for the purposes aforesaid with power by that name in their corporate capacity to sue and be sued, to adopt and use a seal and the same to alter at pleasure, to take, purchase, receive, hold, sell and convey such real and personal estate as the purposes of the corporation shall require, not exceeding in the whole sum the value of $100,000.00 and to mortgage the same to secure any debt of the corporation. Its location shall be in said Honolulu. It shall have power to make By-Laws for the management of its property, the election and removal of its officers and members and the regulation of its affairs, and such By-Laws from time to time to repeal, alter or amend, but the Constitution and the By-Laws heretofore adopted by the said association shall be the By-Laws of the said corporation until the same shall have been repealed, altered or amended with the exception of Articles 1, 2, and 10 of said constitution.

(Signed)      A. J. CAMPBELL,
Treasurer Territory of Hawaii.

I hereby consent to the granting of the foregoing Charter this 14th day of August, A. D. 1907.

(Signed)      G. R. CARTER,
Governor of Hawaii.

SYMBOLS IN THE LIST OF MEMBERS

Original members of the Society, whether children of missionaries or elect members, have their names printed in the usual manner. The names of their children are preceded by one star, and those of children's children by two stars.

In many cases the name is preceded by a symbol in the margin, which denotes the person's missionary parentage or ancestry: and the key to the symbols is the list below, in which the missionary names are given, but no titles.

THE CHARTER

which is printed on the pages within is an old friend with a new face. The occasion for seeking incorporation for the Society was the need of a Board of Trustees to hold property, our new possession of wealth being the leasehold of the old Mission House at Kawaiahao.

A Charter was prepared by a special committee and discussed in Board meetings, April 27 and May 20, and was finally brought before the Society at the adjourned annual meeting, June 1, 1907, for discussion, and received a hearty ratification.

The former Preamble and Constitution are mainly embodied in the Charter; and the former By-Laws are re-cast in their present shape, the only new matter being the creation of a "Maintenance Fund," and the appointment of a Publication Committee.
